4 SEPARATE INVESTIGATIONS UNDER WAY

EXCURSION STEAMER FAVORITE IN DISASTER AT CHICAGO

EYE WITNESSES AND SURVIVORS OF TRAGEDY QUESTIONED

By EDWIN L. HECKLER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, July 29.—Four separate investigations began today into the sinking of the excursion steamer Favorite which cost the lives of 27 persons, twenty-six of them women or children.

Fred J. Meno, superintendent of federal steamship inspection service, was ordered from Detroit to Chicago by Dickerson Hoover, chief steamship inspector in Washington, to conduct the federal investigation. He arrived today.

Meno said he would aid local steamship inspectors in examining facts connected with the accident.

Sheldon Clark, former commodore of the Chicago Yacht club, was to be called as foreman of the coroner's jury officially probing the wreck. Coroner Oscar Wolf announced every member of the jury would be a licensed skipper. The jury was to hold its first session at 2 P. M. today.

Other investigations were started by States Attorney Robert E. Crowe and Michael Hughes, chief of police. Crowe appointed two assistants to attend all hearings held by either federal or local authorities and take steps to prosecute any person found guilty of negligence.

Summons have been issued for appearance of eye witnesses and survivors of the tragedy to appear at the federal building before Meno. The federal investigation will be public, Meno said, but probably will not be held until local authorities have examined the witnesses.

Capt. Arthur Olson, George Jones, engineer, and three deck hands of the boat who were arrested following the disaster, were released without bond, subject to call by the state's attorney.

While preliminary examinations seem to indicate the sinking of the Favorite was an act of God, Meno said, "we are going into every phase of the accident to discover whether any one was criminally negligent."

"The boat was not large enough to demand thorough inspection and the question of stability was not involved. The craft was considered safe for its draft and dimensions."

"Stability tests are made only when requested and then special inspectors from Washington usually do the work."

"The boat had life preservers for 170 and 17 for children, as required by law. Reports also showed the life preservers were accessible."

Chicago, July 29.—Twenty-seven bodies of victims of the excursion tug Favorite had been recovered today as officials sought to fix responsibility for sinking of the small steamer.

Fifteen of the dead were small children, ten were women and one man was drowned. Divers searched the bottom of Lake Michigan near the place where the vessel went down for additional bodies.

The little boat on which some 75 persons embarked yesterday afternoon had been raised early today by derrick crews who worked throughout the night to bring it to the surface.

The last body to be recovered was that of Mike Citra, 7, which was found floating near the beach today.

The small steamer capsized in a squall midway on its "run" of half a dozen miles between the Chicago municipal pier and Lincoln Park.

The crowd aboard was composed almost entirely of children and their mothers who had paid a quarter for the ride in the cooling lake breeze—a brief respite from the intense heat which gripped the city.

The puffing little boat skirted the shore line less than a mile from the beach, going smoothly. A sudden cloudburst driven by a hard wind hit the vessel. All of the crowd on deck rushed to the side opposite the direction of the wind to escape the rain.

The boat dipped suddenly on that side, shipped water, righted again and sank.

The smallest of the children were thrown into the water. The older ones and the few adults aboard jumped or entered the few life boats available.

It was only a minute or two from

BELIEVED LOST ON WASTES OF ARIZONA DESERT

San Diego, Calif., July 29.—(UP)—Believed lost on the wastes of the Arizona desert, the fate of two miners was unknown today.

One of the missing men, Andrew Aresenault, a French Canadian ex-service man, was believed to have lost his mind in a storm which raged over the desert 10 days ago. Whether or not he could have endured the day's blazing sun and the night's chilling air was doubted.

Larry McAfee, the other miner, was last seen Monday when he started across the desert to a new mining district.

Airplanes, cooperating with ground searching parties, have not been successful in the search for the two men.

the time of the first intimation of the accident until the boat settled on the bottom, quieting the screams of those in the cabin who had been unable to reach the deck.

Two negro musicians who were strumming banjos and singing about "Four Leaf Clovers," continued their tune a moment after the ship first toppled. Then they stopped. The laughing and shouting of the children was quiet for a second.

Then those on board sensed the tragedy. Those nearest the railing tried to get back, but were thrown overboard. Mothers screamed and clung to their children. Some of the youngsters had become separated from their parents. The latter refused to leave the vessel until they found the little ones.

When the boat settled on the bottom, the water was "alive" with humanity. Captain Arthur Olson had rushed along the rail, cut the life boats loose and thrown life preservers into the lake.

The women and children made for these. Most of those who were fortunate enough to find something to cling to or could swim at all were rescued. Some of the smaller tots were driven under by the rain.

The boat was in relatively shallow water and the super-structure protruded above the surface.

Literally thousands of persons were on the beach opposite the sinking boat and their cries brought police and fire boats to the scene as quickly as humanly possible.

William Hofnauer, millionaire yachtsman, who was cruising near the scene, was the outstanding hero of the rescue. His big boat was the first to reach the Favorite. He and his crew pulled the struggling women and children from the water.

Hofnauer's yacht was soon joined by other vessels in the vicinity.

Divers followed to recover the bodies of the dead lying on the lake bottom and trapped in the vessel. They found most of the victims in or near the vessel. Some were trapped in the cabin, others on the stairway leading to the deck. A few were caught on the side of the Favorite and pulled under while others refused to leave the sinking ship and were sucked under when it went down.

The electrical storm which raged during the time of the accident was of cloudburst proportions.

Sinking of the Favorite recalled the ill-fated steamer Eastland which tipped over in the Chicago river 12 years ago last Sunday, carrying hundreds of excursionists to their death. The accident yesterday was the first major marine accident near Chicago since the Eastland sank.

Immediately after rescue work was completed, machinery for fixing responsibility for the accident was put in motion. The boat was 55 feet long over all and was purchased by Captain Olson three years ago for $1,500, he said. There were 60 paid passengers and an unknown number of children under 12 who did not pay fare.

Investigations were to be conducted both by the county coroner and by Capt. John F. Hansen, head of the Chicago board of steamship inspectors.

Olson, his engineer and three deck hands were arrested and questioned. They said safety of the boat had been approved by federal inspectors and it had not been loaded beyond capacity.

Charles T. Abernathy, one of the few men on the ship, claimed four of five life preservers he attempted to fasten to members of his family had straps which broke when he pulled on them slightly. Abernathy's two children were drowned.

There were more than sufficient

PRES. COOLIDGE IS IMPROVING IN HEALTH

FIRST REAL REST FROM HIS "MAN KILLER" OF A JOB

GENERAL PHYSICAL CONDITION HARDENED BY EXERCISE

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Rapid City, S. D., July 29.—President Coolidge is daily improving in health after four years on the job which has been considered a "man killer," according to Major F. Coupal, the president's personal physician.

While Mr. Coolidge has lost two pounds in weight since his arrival in the Black Hills for his summer vacation, his general physical condition has been hardened by exercise of walking, fishing and horseback riding, Major Coupal told the United Press.

After the death of President Harding and following the breakdown of President Wilson, agitation was begun to lighten the burden of the presidential position in the belief that onerous duties were too much for one man. However, Coupal said that Mr. Coolidge is growing stronger on the job and that the rarified atmosphere, 4,200 feet above sea level, has improved him considerably.

Mr. Coolidge has never spent his summer vacation in such a high climate and Major Coupal was apprehensive that the change from Washington here might effect the president's heart. Instead it has helped him.

"When you walk at this altitude for one mile you receive the same physical benefit as from four miles at sea level," Coupal declared. In other words, exertion of energy at this height gives four times the beneficial results of the same energy expended at a lower level.

Major Coupal says Mr. Coolidge gets more out of the walking than the average man because he has adopted a military stride, walking with chest out, waist in, and head erect. When he came out here Mr. Coolidge weighed 160 pounds but exercise he has taken has hardened him down to 158.

He expects to go back to Washington at this fighting weight.

SERIOUS REVOLTS IN THE UKRAINE

London, July 29.—(UP)—A Daily Mail dispatch today from Warsaw reported serious revolts in the Ukraine against Soviet authorities.

At Skvira insurgents fired on headquarters of Soviet authorities, killing an official.

Rebels occupied Tarasno and established a council which sentenced 27 communists to death by shooting. Peasants at Kharkov attacked the military, for which uprising 51 of the peasants have been tried, the dispatch said.

BANDITS PICKED THE WRONG MAN

Chicago, July 29.—(UP)—When two men held up Dr. Frank L. Nathanson in his office, he drew his own revolver from a drawer in his desk and fired at them, killing one and fatally wounding the other.

A woman patient and two nurses were in the office at the time and witnessed the shooting.

The alleged bandits were not identified.

MINERS ENTOMBED IN COAL MINE

London, July 29.—(UP)—A Morning Post dispatch today from Warsaw reported many miners entombed in the biggest coal mine in Poland, the Casimir at Dombrowa, Gornicza. They were trapped when the main structure of the mine, a thousand feet underground, collapsed.

Rescuers recovered three mutilated bodies.

RAIN INSURES FINE CORN CROP IN ALL KANSAS

Topeka, Kan., July 29.—(UP)—Rain which fell late yesterday and during the night has insured a bigger corn crop this year than in many years past, according to prominent farm leaders and grainmen here. 2.14 inches of rainfall was recorded here and reports from north and western parts of the state indicate that the rain was general.

100,000 CHINESE WERE KILLED IN EARTHQUAKE

REMOTE PROVINCE OF KANSU WAS SCENE OF DISASTER

BROKEN TELEGRAPH COMMUNICATION DELAYS NEWS TRANSMISSION

London, July 29.—(UP)—A hundred thousand Chinese were killed in an earthquake on May 23 in the remote province of Kansu, China, Monsignor Buddenbrock, vicar apostolic of the Stehl mission at Liangchow, reported in a letter to the Shanghai correspondent of the Westminster Gazette.

Broken telegraph communications prevented news of the disaster from reaching the outside world sooner. The bishop's letter gave the first details of the catastrophe.

The bishop said the cities of Siangliang, Liangchow and Kulang were wiped out instantaneously and at least 10,000 persons were killed in Liangchow alone. The city of Tumense was buried beneath the Moving Mountain.

He said survivors were living in huts without food or clothing and their misery was indescribable.

The quake occurred at Sisiang during mass. Dozens of the congregation, including the mother superior and many children, were buried when the church collapsed. Priests attempted to rescue the living and administered the last sacrament to the dying. Not a building in the city remained intact and every house contained dead or dying, the bishop wrote.

OPERATE TO REMOVE CRIMINAL BENT

Hollywood, Cal., July 29.—(UP)—An operation on William Sherrill to remove alleged criminal tendencies had proved successful today, physicians believed.

Authorities declared Sherrill had a long criminal record throughout western states. His mother, Mrs. E. M. Lutz of Denver, asserted her son was a criminal by "accident and not purpose."

Medical treatment on Sherrill began 10 days. A hole was bored in his skull and the brain gradually accustomed to outside pressure.

Last night excess fluid and other irritating influences were removed. Sherrill must appear in court Aug. 5 to prove that all traces of the criminal impulse have been removed.

7,000 CHINESE REPORTED DROWNED IN FULIEN FLOOD

Shanghai, July 29.—(UP)—Reports received here today said a tremendous disaster had resulted from floods in Fuli province. One report estimated that 7,000 Chinese had been drowned.

Crops valued at $5,000,000 were destroyed, the report continued, and the town of Changchowshien was said to have been virtually wiped out.

NEW BRITISH PROPOSALS TO BE BROACHED

HOPE TO GAIN SETTLEMENT OF DISTURBING CRUISER PROBLEM

IF NOT ACCEPTABLE, EARLY COLLAPSE OF CONFERENCE HINTED

London, July 29.—(UP)—Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain hastily summoned a cabinet meeting this afternoon, presumably to consider the prospective failure of President Coolidge's naval limitations conference at Geneva.

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, July 29.—The new British proposals for the settlement of the cruiser problem will hardly prove acceptable to the American and Japanese delegates, and the early collapse of the naval limitations conference was generally predicted today.

No formal action will be taken, however, until the plenary session set for Monday. Meanwhile, the Americans and Japanese will study the new proposals in more detail while the British, if they desire, will have time to advance still another plan more likely to satisfy the Americans and Japanese.

The proposals now before the conference, submitted by the British on their return yesterday from London, would allow the United States and Britain a maximum of 12 10,000-ton cruisers and restrict gun calibre on all other cruisers to six inches.

Great Britain and the United States would be permitted a maximum tonnage of 590,000 for cruisers, submarines and destroyers, Japan 385,000 tons.

In addition, each nation would be allowed to retain 25 per cent of the total in obsolete ships, adding by that much to the maximum tonnage.

Observers predicted that Japan would never agree to the high total tonnage and that the United States delegates would not be satisfied with 12 large cruisers and six-inch guns for the smaller ones, as provided in the new British proposal.

The Americans at first asked 25 of the large cruisers and later offered to compromise on 18. They demand 8 inch guns for 7,500-ton cruisers, which is not provided for in the new proposals.

Other points of the proposed plans provided:

That destroyers be divided into two classes—flotilla leaders of 1,850 tons maximum; others between 1,500-1,800 tons. Destroyer guns not to be over 5 inches.

That submarines be divided into two classes—Class A, between 1,000 and 1,800 tons; Class B, not over 600 tons. Guns not to exceed five inches.

Total submarine tonnage, Great Britain and the United States, 90,000 each; Japan, 60,000.

Age limit to be: large cruisers, 15 years; small cruisers, 16; destroyers, 16; submarines, 13.

The proposals were submitted at a full meeting of the executive committee composed of W. C. Bridgeman and Lord Cecil for Britain, Hugh Gibson and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones for the United States and Viscount Ishii and Baron Salto for Japan.

By LUDWELL DENNY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, July 29.—The new British proposals to the Geneva naval conference appeared on first examination by officials here today to be unacceptable.

Officials have been unable to find the advertised "modifications," holding the new proposals to be essentially the same British plan which the American delegation informally declared unacceptable before the British delegation was recalled to London for cabinet consultation. The proposal for a new and third intermediate class within the old

TRAIN WRECK DID NOT AWAKEN CHARLES G. DAWES

Memphis, Tenn., July 29.—(UP)—Although the engineer of a Yazoo and Mississippi Valley train was killed when the locomotive caved in a wooden trestle near Head, Miss., Vice President Charles G. Dawes, who was sleeping in a car in the rear, did not awaken, according to reports here today.

Sam Jones, the engineer, was found dead and J. F. Horton, fireman, was injured. The engine left the track and was almost submerged in water. None of the Pullmans attached to the train was damaged, however.

Greenville, Miss., July 29.—(UP)—The engineer was killed and three trainmen were injured near Head, Miss., early today when the locomotive drawing the special train of Vice President Charles G. Dawes crashed through a flood-weakened trestle.

The vice president was not awakened by the accident, but cries of trainmen aroused him and, with other members of his party, he rushed out to help with rescue work.

Engineer Sam Jones was trapped in the cab of the locomotive as it sank into the water completely submerged. The fireman and a second engineer swam ashore safely. A member of the train crew dived into the locomotive to recover Jones' body.

The train was proceeding slowly and only the locomotive was over the trestle when it collapsed. The bridge was a frame structure 25 feet above the water.

Among the 60 persons endangered besides Dawes were C. H. Markham, chairman of the Illinois Central board; former Secretary of War Dickinson, and former Mayor Rowlett of Memphis.

The train was en route to Memphis from Greenville, where Dawes delivered an address last night.

NINE PRISONERS SAW WAY OUT

Wewoka, Okla., July 29.—(UP)—Seminole county officers today were searching for nine prisoners who early today sawed their way out of the county jail here, escaping down a blanket rope.

cruiser class is not entirely clear to the American experts here.

Unless the British make actual concessions, not now in sight, collapse of the conference next week is considered here practically certain.

On official outlined to the United Press the administration's objections to the British plan as follows:

It limits the number of 10,000-ton eight inch gun cruisers, the type needed by the United States, without limiting the number of small cruisers desired by Britain. By limiting all except 12 large cruisers to a maximum of 6,000 tons and six-inch guns, Britain's huge merchant fleet becomes a potential cruiser squadron. By allowing retention of so-called obsolete ships up to 25 per cent of the treaty total, and reducing the age limit on "modern" ships, the plan's nominal 590,000 tonnage total for Britain and the United States becomes an actual 740,000 ton total.

Officials refused to comment in the light of Geneva developments on the significance of the navy department's announcement at this particular time that it has let contracts for four 10,000 ton cruisers in addition to two more to be built in navy yards, and still another pair already under construction.

There is the utmost opposition by naval experts here to the British plan to limit the number of 10,000 ton ships which this government can build, and the limit of 12 such ships suggested by the British is exceptionally objectionable to them. They point out that Britain already has 19 ships of this type built or building, while the United States has none afloat.

Because the United States lacks the world chain of naval and fuel bases possessed by Britain, officials insist that this country must have cruisers large enough for long radius scouting.

The American plan calls for making the nominal British plan total tonnages on actual limit by eliminating the proviso for retention of so-called obsolete ships. Secondly, the American plan would allow each country to apportion in large or small cruisers, according to its own needs, the class tonnage total fixed by the conference.

CAUGHT IN STORM OVER MILLE LACS LAKE

LOSES SIGHT OF BRAINERD AND FORCED DOWN NEAR CROOKED LAKE

LANDS IN SMALL CLEARING AND SMASHES INTO JACK-PINES

Caught in a severe electrical storm near Mille Lacs lake Monday, W. P. McFall of Fargo, N. D., flying his own National Airway System Air King plane, was forced down about 70 miles from Brainerd.

Mr. McFall left Minneapolis Monday morning and was enroute to Fargo when caught in the storm, which was caused by the terrific midsummer heat which prevailed generally throughout this section the past week. Unable to sight a favorable landing place, he managed to keep up until nearing Crooked lake when he was forced to land to save himself and plane.

Heading for a small clearing near a road he landed in swampy territory, contriving to wrap his right set of wings around a jackpine, thereby saving his plane from further harm and probably injury to himself. According to Mr. McFall, his landing was most fortunate as he suffered no injuries. His plane sustained a broken propeller and a set of broken right wings. The plane was hauled to Brainerd on a Ford truck owned by a farmer living in the vicinity where the machine was forced down, and is being crated to be sent to Lomax, Ill., where the planes are manufactured. Mr. McFall had hoped to find an aerial field in Brainerd and perhaps repairs for his machine to enable him to continue his journey.

In speaking to R. R. Gould, president of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce, Mr. McFall stressed the fact that it was time for the people of Brainerd to get "air minded" as aerial transportation is a feature that is coming forward faster than most people generally concede. An air field with hangar in charge of a local flier could do much to encourage aviation in this district and he suggested that a local committee be sent to Little Falls to welcome Col. Lindbergh on his scheduled arrival in August, and get a greater understanding of what aerial transportation really means. Mr. McFall suggested Colonel Britton of St. Paul for further information regarding a local air field and hangar.

He also told of the initial trip on the Northwest air mail line between Minneapolis and Fargo that was made three weeks ago. This has become a regular feature and an air mail line is now being contemplated between Minneapolis and Duluth. In conclusion Mr. McFall asked: "Is Brainerd going to sit still regarding these things or will it act towards the furtherance of air transportation?"

SIX YEAR OLD BOY SUFFOCATED IN SAND-HILL CAVEIN

St. Paul, July 29.—(UP)—The ingenuity and modern adventurous spirit of Cuno Hagberg caused the six year old boy's death in a sand-hill cavein here late Thursday.

Cuno was excavating in the hill where sand, formed to clay by recent rains, suddenly loosed and buried the young adventurer. He was constructing a "hangar" for a toy airplane.

Assisting the Hagberg boy in the operations was seven year old Richard Tolley who narrowly escaped the fate of Cuno.

FIRE DESTROYS 100 HOUSES IN ATHENS AREA

London, July 29.—(UP)—A Daily Telegraph dispatch today from Athens said fire destroyed more than a hundred wooden houses in a refugee settlement on the outskirts of Athens.

The skulls of two children have been found in the ruins. Several persons were injured and thousands were homeless, the dispatch added.

Topeka, Kan., July 29.—(UP)—Rain which fell late yesterday and during the night has insured a bigger corn crop this year than in many years past, according to prominent farm leaders and grainmen here. 2.14 inches of rainfall was recorded here and reports from north and western parts of the state indicate that the rain was general.

100,000 CHINESE WERE KILLED IN EARTHQUAKE

REMOTE PROVINCE OF KANSU WAS SCENE OF DISASTER

BROKEN TELEGRAPH COMMUNICATION DELAYS NEWS TRANSMISSION

London, July 29.—(UP)—A hundred thousand Chinese were killed in an earthquake on May 23 in the remote province of Kansu, China, Monsignor Buddenbrook, vicar apostolic of the Stehl mission at Liangchow, reported in a letter to the Shanghai correspondent of the Westminster Gazette.

Broken telegraph communications prevented news of the disaster from reaching the outside world sooner. The bishop's letter gave the first details of the catastrophe.

The bishop said the cities of Siliang, Liangchow and Kulang were wiped out instantaneously and at least 10,000 persons were killed in Liangchow alone. The city of Tumentse was buried beneath the Moving Mountain.

He said survivors were living in huts without food or clothing and their misery was indescribable.

The quake occurred at Siliang during mass. Dozens of the congregation, including the mother superior and many children, were buried when the church collapsed. Priests attempted to rescue the living and administered the last sacrament to the dying. Not a building in the city remained intact and every house contained dead or dying, the bishop wrote.

OPERATE TO REMOVE CRIMINAL BENT

Hollywood, Cal., July 29.—(UP)—An operation on William Sherrill to remove alleged criminal tendencies had proved successful today, physicians believed.

Authorities declared Sherrill had a long criminal record throughout western states. His mother, Mrs. E. M. Lutz of Denver, asserted her son was a criminal by "accident and not purpose."

Medical treatment on Sherrill began 10 days. A hole was bored in his skull and the brain gradually accustomed to outside pressure.

Last night excess fluid and other irritating influences were removed. Sherrill must appear in court Aug. 5 to prove that all traces of the criminal impulse have been removed.

7,000 CHINESE REPORTED DROWNED IN FULIEN FLOOD

Shanghai, July 29.—(UP)—Reports received here today said a tremendous disaster had resulted from floods in Fuli province. One report estimated that 7,000 Chinese had been drowned.

Crops valued at $5,000,000 were destroyed, the report continued, and the town of Changchowshien was said to have been virtually wiped out.

NEW BRITISH PROPOSALS TO BE BROACHED

HOPE TO GAIN SETTLEMENT OF DISTURBING CRUISER PROBLEM

IF NOT ACCEPTABLE, EARLY COLLAPSE OF CONFERENCE HINTED

London, July 29.—(UP)—Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain hastily summoned a cabinet meeting this afternoon, presumably to consider the prospective failure of President Coolidge's naval limitations conference at Geneva.

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, July 29.—The new British proposals for the settlement of the cruiser problem will hardly prove acceptable to the American and Japanese delegates, and the early collapse of the naval limitations conference was generally predicted today.

No formal action will be taken, however, until the plenary session set for Monday. Meanwhile, the Americans and Japanese will study the new proposals in more detail while the British, if they desire, will have time to advance still another plan more likely to satisfy the Americans and Japanese.

The proposals now before the conference, submitted by the British on their return yesterday from London, would allow the United States and Britain a maximum of 12 10,000-ton cruisers and restrict gun calibre on all other cruisers to six inches.

Great Britain and the United States would be permitted a maximum tonnage of 590,000 for cruisers, submarines and destroyers, Japan 385,000 tons.

In addition, each nation would be allowed to retain 25 per cent of the total in obsolete ships, adding by that much to the maximum tonnage.

Observers predicted that Japan would never agree to the high total tonnage and that the United States delegates would not be satisfied with 12 large cruisers and six-inch guns for the smaller ones, as provided in the new British proposal.

The Americans at first asked 25 of the large cruisers and later offered to compromise on 18. They demand 8 inch guns for 7,500-ton cruisers, which is not provided for in the new proposals.

Other points of the proposed plans provided:

That destroyers be divided into two classes—flotilla leaders of 1,850 tons maximum; others between 1,500-1,800 tons. Destroyer guns not to be over 5 inches.

That submarines be divided into two classes—Class A, between 1,000 and 1,800 tons; Class B, not over 600 tons. Guns not to exceed five inches.

Total submarine tonnage, Great Britain and the United States, 90,000 each; Japan, 60,000.

Age limit to be: large cruisers, 15 years; small cruisers, 16; destroyers, 16; submarines, 13.

The proposals were submitted at a full meeting of the executive committee composed of W. C. Bridgeman and Lord Cecil for Britain, Hugh Gibson and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones for the United States and Viscount Ishii and Baron Saito for Japan.

By LUDWELL DENNY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 29.—The new British proposals to the Geneva naval conference appeared on first examination by officials here today to be unacceptable.

Officials have been unable to find the advertised "modifications," holding the new proposals to be essentially the same British plan which the American delegation informally declared unacceptable before the London for cabinet consultation. The proposal for a new and third intermediate class within the old

TRAIN WRECK DID NOT AWAKEN CHARLES G. DAWES

Memphis, Tenn., July 29.—(UP)—Although the engineer of a Yazoo and Mississippi Valley train was killed when the locomotive caved in a wooden trestle near Head, Miss., Vice President Charles G. Dawes, who was sleeping in a car in the rear, did not awaken, according to reports here today.

Sam Jones, the engineer, was found dead and J. F. Horton, fireman, was injured. The engine left the track and was almost submerged in water. None of the Pullmans attached to the train was damaged, however.

Greenville, Miss., July 29.—(UP)—The engineer was killed and three trainmen were injured near Head, Miss., early today when the locomotive drawing the special train of Vice President Charles G. Dawes crashed through a flood-weakened trestle.

The vice president was not awakened by the accident, but cries of trainmen aroused him and, with other members of his party, he rushed out to help with rescue work.

Engineer Sam Jones was trapped in the cab of the locomotive as it sank into the water completely submerged. The fireman and a second engineer swam ashore safely. A member of the train crew dived into the locomotive to recover Jones' body.

The train was proceeding slowly and only the locomotive was over the trestle when it collapsed. The bridge was a frame structure 25 feet above the water.

Among the 60 persons endangered besides Dawes were C. H. Markham, chairman of the Illinois Central board; former Secretary of War Dickenson, and former Mayor Rowlett of Memphis.

The train was en route to Memphis from Greenville, where Dawes delivered an address last night.

NINE PRISONERS SAW WAY OUT

Wewoka, Okla., July 29.—(UP)—Seminole county officers today were searching for nine prisoners who early today sawed their way out of the county jail here, escaping down a blanket rope.

cruiser class is not entirely clear to the American experts here.

Unless the British make actual concessions, not now in sight, collapse of the conference next week is considered here practically certain.

On official outlined to the United Press the administration's objections to the British plan as follows:

It limits the number of 10,000-ton eight inch gun cruisers, the type needed by the United States, without limiting the number of small cruisers desired by Britain. By limiting all except 12 large cruisers to a maximum of 6,000 tons and six-inch guns, Britain's huge merchant fleet becomes a potential cruiser squadron. By allowing retention of so-called obsolete ships up to 25 per cent of the treaty total, and reducing the age limit on "modern" ships, the plan's nominal 590,000 tonnage total for Britain and the United States becomes an actual 740,000 ton total.

Officials refused to comment in the light of Geneva developments on the significance of the navy department's announcement at this particular time that it has let contracts for four 10,000 ton cruisers in addition to two more to be built in navy yards, and still another pair already under construction.

There is the utmost opposition by naval experts here to the British plan to limit the number of 10,000 ton ships which this government can build, and the limit of 12 such ships suggested by the British is exceptionally objectionable to them. They point out that Britain already has 19 ships of this type built or building, while the United States has none afloat.

Because the United States lacks the world chain of naval and fuel bases possessed by Britain, officials insist that this country must have cruisers large enough for long radius scouting.

The American plan calls for making the nominal British plan total tonnages on actual limit by eliminating the proviso for retention of so-called obsolete ships. Secondly, the American plan would allow each country to apportion in large or small cruisers, according to its own needs, the class tonnage total fixed by the conference.

CAUGHT IN STORM OVER MILLE LACS LAKE

LOSES SIGHT OF BRAINERD AND FORCED DOWN NEAR CROOKED LAKE

LANDS IN SMALL CLEARING AND SMASHES INTO JACK-PINES

Caught in a severe electrical storm near Mille Lacs lake Monday, W. P. McFall of Fargo, N. D., flying his own National Airway System Air King plane, was forced down about 70 miles from Brainerd.

Mr. McFall left Minneapolis Monday morning and was enroute to Fargo when caught in the storm, which was caused by the terrific midsummer heat which prevailed generally throughout this section the past week. Unable to sight a favorable landing place, he managed to keep up until nearing Crooked lake when he was forced to land to save himself and plane.

Heading for a small clearing near a road he landed in swampy territory, contriving to wrap his right set of wings around a jackpine, thereby saving his plane from further harm and probably injury to himself. According to Mr. McFall, his landing was most fortunate as he suffered no injuries. His plane sustained a broken propeller and a set of broken right wings. The plane was hauled to Brainerd on a Ford truck owned by a farmer living in the vicinity where the machine was forced down, and is being crated to be sent to Lomax, Ill., where the planes are manufactured. Mr. McFall had hoped to find an aerial field in Brainerd and perhaps repairs for his machine to enable him to continue his journey.

In speaking to R. R. Gould, president of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce, Mr. McFall stressed the fact that it was time for the people of Brainerd to get "air minded" as aerial transportation is a feature that is coming forward faster than most people generally concede. An air field with hangar in charge of a local flier could do much to encourage aviation in this district and he suggested that a local committee be sent to Little Falls to welcome Col. Lindbergh on his scheduled arrival in August, and get a greater understanding of what aerial transportation really means. Mr. McFall suggested Colonel Britton of St. Paul for further information regarding a local air field and hangar.

He also told of the initial trip on the Northwest air mail line between Minneapolis and Fargo that was made three weeks ago. This has become a regular feature and an air mail line is now being contemplated between Minneapolis and Duluth. In conclusion Mr. McFall asked: "Is Brainerd going to sit still regarding these things or will it act towards the furtherance of air transportation?"

SIX YEAR OLD BOY SUFFOCATED IN SAND-HILL CAVEIN

St. Paul, July 29.—(UP)—The ingenuity and modern adventurous spirit of Cuno Hagberg caused the six year old boy's death in a sand-hill cavein here late Thursday.

Cuno was excavating in the hill where sand, formed to clay by recent rains, suddenly loosed and buried the young adventurer. He was constructing a "hangar" for a toy airplane.

Assisting the Hagberg boy in the operations was seven year old Richard Tolley who narrowly escaped the fate of Cuno.

FIRE DESTROYS 100 HOUSES IN ATHENS AREA

London, July 29.—(UP)—A Daily Telegraph dispatch today from Athens said fire destroyed more than a hundred wooden houses in a refugee settlement on the outskirts of Athens. The skulls of two children have been found in the ruins. Several persons were injured and thousands were homeless, the dispatch added.

STORY OF SINKING BY EYE WITNESS

Chicago, July 29. — Here is the story of the sinking of the Favorite, as told by W. A. Hofnauer, commander of the yacht, Doris, first rescue boat to reach the sinking steamer:

"We saw the boat going and made toward it as fast as possible. We got there and managed to get a line aboard before she sank.

"They were packed on the two decks of the steamer and in the cabin like sardines, screaming, fighting, sobbing—most of them women and children.

"We managed to get some of the passengers from the steamer to the yacht before the boat went clear under. Most of them had to be pushed aboard. Some had to be carried.

"They fought and scrambled, screaming, 'Save my mother' or 'Save my baby.' The men on the boat were too confused or exhausted to help us much. A young priest aided in getting the crowd aboard the yacht in somewhat orderly fashion.

"Some of those below could not be reached. Others had jumped into the water and had to be hauled out." Hofnauer said he believed Captain Olson was not to blame for the fate of his vessel.

"He had a seaworthy craft and it was not overloaded," the yachtman said. "We didn't know ourselves whether we could stand that gale. It was terrific."

FOUR OF HER 7 RELATIVES DROWNED

Chicago, July 29. — Four of seven relatives of Mrs. Gertrude Brendt, only survivor of the Eastland disaster aboard the Favorite, were drowned when the excursion steamer sank.

Mrs. Brendt, however, escaped for the second time. "The storm struck and the boat was tipped so badly, I called to some of the people to go to the other side," Mrs. Brendt said. "One man told me to mind my own business—he didn't want to get wet.

"In a minute the boat toppled clear over, just like the Eastland did. I was thrown into the water with my daughter, Lois. She is five years old. I knew the child could swim and let her go. Somebody threw us a rope in a minute and we were pulled out."

Mrs. Brendt's husband, Edward, was also rescued. Brendt's mother, sister-in-law and a small niece and nephew were among the dead, however.

YANKEES MAKING COMEDY OUT OF LEAGUE RACE

RIVALS OF NEW YORK CLUB ARE ALMOST IN DES- PAIR

OTHER CLUB OWNERS WONDER HOW THEY CAN BE STOPPED NEXT YEAR

By HENRY L. FARRELL

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 29. — Rivals of the New York Yankees in the American League are almost in despair over the comedy the former champions are making out of the pennant race.

It isn't so much a matter of grave concern to them that the Yankees look like a cinch for the 1927 pennant but the owners of the other clubs, peering over the age list on the roster, are wondering how they are going to be stopped next year.

With the exception of Joe Dugan, who may not be able to play through the season next year at third base, it is comparatively a young ball club. Bob Meusel, Combs and Ruth are not infants, of course, but neither are they tottering Cobbs or Speakers.

Gehrig, Lazzeri and Koenig certainly are youngsters just approaching the top of their game.

There is the important question about pitchers, of course, but pitching isn't such a vital factor with a club that can step out and score six, eight, ten and fifteen runs.

Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns, was the first magnate to announce a rebuilding program. He said he was going to tear his club to pieces and that only four players would be retained. Perhaps he has some secret system but six other managers and owners in the league would like to know where he is going to find the new team.

He can't buy one for two reasons — he hasn't enough money and it can't be done with the money. Connie Mack, who is reported to have spent almost a half million dollars last winter in the attempt to build up a pennant winner, can assure him of that.

Mack is almost sure to make some changes. The team failed this year and will fail again for the same reason next season. It is doubtful that Cobb will play next season and perhaps his absence will not be felt any too badly, although he has played some great ball in spots this season.

Cobb is said to have told friends that he is playing this year just to vindicate himself and that he was ready to retire last season when the Leonard charges were made against him.

The Cleveland Indians will have to make some changes if they are to be figured next year but the Washington Senators, the White Sox and the Detroit Tigers are fairly well set.

The Boston Red Sox are hopeless.

No cream actually transforms the skin..

No cosmetics successfully conceal its blemishes

... But scientific care can help your skin to function happily, and so develop and preserve for you the lovely characteristics of a naturally clear fresh skin

A LOVELY SKIN, is, prosaically, a layer of active tissues. It excretes certain wastes through the pores. It must be fed, else it becomes too relaxed and impoverished to work. And it must keep working, else the wastes pile up and mar the skin with blemishes, coarse pores and sallowness. Correct care of the skin means simply keeping the cells beautifully busy.

The Elizabeth Arden Treatment is based on three fundamental steps: Cleansing, Toning and Nourishing. Cleansing—with pure melting Venetian Cleansing Cream—to dislodge all those impurities which clog the pores and cause blackheads and coarseness. Toning—with Ardena Skin Tonic and Special Astringent—to close the pores, tone and firm the skin, and keep the circulation through the skin tissues brisk and active. Nourishing—with Orange Skin Food or the delicate Velve Cream—to keep every skin cell full and firm, and so prevent or correct the wrinkles and lines of impoverished tissues.

Follow the same three steps in your Self Treatments at home. Just a few minutes' care each night and morning, using the corrective Preparations and method developed by Elizabeth Arden, will accomplish wonderful results.

PATting with ARDENA SKIN TONIC brings quick circulation through the skin tissues and so keeps the skin clear and fine, the contour firm and smooth

Washington, July 29.—The federal government today took a step to insure complete investigation of the excursion boat disaster at Chicago. The commerce department ordered its supervising inspector of steamboats in the Chicago district, Frederick J. Meno, to keep in close touch with the investigation there and make certain it is thoroughly conducted.

Dickerson N. Hoover, supervising inspector general of the steamboat inspection service, said two inspectors at Chicago, John S. Hanson and William S. Nichols, would conduct the investigation, which will be public.

TURQUOISE MINE OWNERS AND 'JUMPERS' BATTLE

Tonopah, Nev., July 29.—(UP)—Flavoring of the days of '49, residents here feared a fight between owners of a turquoise mine and "claim jumpers" might be renewed today.

All manner of weapons including guns have been used in the fray so far without serious injury to any of the participants. The mine was said to have produced $10,000 worth of stones last year.

She was taken into custody by policemen who found her in a taxicab which was being driven overland from Avon Lake to Cleveland. The driver said the girl had asked for a "lift." She told police she was stranded in Oklahoma where she had been selling books and had adopted the boy's costume so she could travel easier.

TWO ALIENISTS EXAMINE CULPRIT

Minneapolis, July 29.—(UP)—Two alienists today found Harry Carey, alleged to have assaulted Mrs. Harry Schultz several weeks ago, to be subject to "abnormal tendencies."

Carey is held in the county jail here pending his trial and the examination was made by Dr. E. G. Dumas, alienist of the United States veterans hospital at Fort Snelling, and Dr. H. B. Hannah of Minneapolis.

Mrs. Schultz was found unconscious near her home and suffering from injuries on the head inflicted with a heavy club.

YANKEES MAKING COMEDY OUT OF LEAGUE RACE

RIVALS OF NEW YORK CLUB ARE ALMOST IN DES-
PAIR

OTHER CLUB OWNERS WONDER
HOW THEY CAN BE STOPPED
NEXT YEAR

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 29. — Rivals of the New York Yankees in the American League are almost in despair over the comedy the former champions are making out of the pennant race.

It isn't so much a matter of grave concern to them that the Yankees look like a cinch for the 1927 pennant but the owners of the other clubs, peering over the age list on the roster, are wondering how they are going to be stopped next year.

With the exception of Joe Dugan, who may not be able to play through the season next year at third base, it is comparatively a young ball club. Bob Meusel, Cobb, and Ruth are not infants, of course, but neither are they tottering Cobbs or Speakers.

Gehrig, Lazzeri and Koenig certainly are youngsters just approaching the top of their game.

There is the important question about pitchers, of course, but pitching isn't such a vital factor with a club that can step out and score six, eight, ten and fifteen runs.

Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns, was the first magnate to announce a rebuilding program. He said he was going to tear his club to pieces and that only four players would be retained. Perhaps he has some secret system but six other managers and owners in the league would like to know where he is going to find the new team.

He can't buy one for two reasons — he hasn't enough money and it can't be done with the money. Connie Mack, who is reported to have spent almost a half million dollars last winter in the attempt to build up a pennant winner, can assure him of that.

Mack is almost sure to make some changes. The team failed this year and will fail again for the same reason next season. It is doubtful that Cobb will play next season and perhaps his absence will not be felt any too badly, although he has played some great ball in spots this season.

Cobb is said to have told friends that he is playing this year just to vindicate himself and that he was ready to retire last season when the Leonard charges were made against him.

The Cleveland Indians will have to make some changes if they are to be figured next year but the Washington Senators, the White Sox and the Detroit Tigers are fairly well set.

The Boston Red Sox are hopeless.

No cream actually transforms the skin.

No cosmetics successfully conceal its blemishes

... But scientific care can help your skin to function happily, and so develop and preserve for you the lovely characteristics of a naturally clear fresh skin

A LOVELY SKIN, is, prosaically, a layer of active tissues. It excretes certain wastes through the pores. It must be fed, else it becomes too relaxed and impoverished to work. And it must keep working, else the wastes pile up and mar the skin with blemishes, coarse pores and sallowness. Correct care of the skin means simply keeping the cells beautifully busy.

The Elizabeth Arden Treatment is based on three fundamental steps: Cleansing, Toning and Nourishing. Cleansing—with pure melting Venetian Cleansing Cream—to dislodge all those impurities which clog the pores and cause blackheads and coarseness. Toning—with Ardena Skin Tonic and Special Astringent—to close the pores, tone and firm the skin, and keep the circulation through the skin tissues brisk and active. Nourishing—with Orange Skin Food or the delicate Velva Cream—to keep every skin cell full and firm, and so prevent or correct the wrinkles and lines of impoverished tissues.

Follow the same three steps in your Self Treatments at home. Just a few minutes' care each night and morning, using the corrective Preparations and method developed by Elizabeth Arden, will accomplish wonderful results.

AMERICAN OPTIMISM

NOT long ago a brilliant young Latin-American, a writer of distinction and a keen observer, when visiting in this country, took occasion to say something like this:

"I wonder at you Americans. You are so optimistic. You face evils so bravely and with such cheery courage. You attack evils imbedded in human nature and have no doubt that you will end them. I do not think that you are going to wipe out all wrong things, but I love you for trying and having no doubts. I salute you with utter admiration."

Words like these from the native of another land are welcome in the view of the fact that most expressions about Americans from abroad are far from approving, continues Editor Stillman Bingham of the Duluth Herald. But there is one thing that critics should know.

The average American is a severe critic of his own country. Outlanders seldom say worse of Americans than they say of themselves.

Americans recognize evils only to plan to end them, and they work that way without a doubt that all will be better, all will be well, some day.

This optimism, which is a nobility of the soul, is typical here. It has led this people to scale mountains, to water deserts, to bridge rivers, to conquer and harness nature to the service of mankind.

DELAY IS COSTING TOO MUCH

NOT having the St. Lawrence Seaway is costing the average man so much that it can not be ignored.

Take the case of a farmer growing a thousand bushels of wheat:

It is agreed that, by bringing this grain 12 cents per bushel closer to the market price of grain in Europe the farmer will benefit to that extent.

The indicated benefit to the farmer is $120. That is his present loss through not having the seaway.

Suppose we translate that loss into terms of practical comfort. It means a $40 suit for friend farmer, a $50 coat for his wife, a $15 suit for his boy, and $15 to pay for a pair of shoes for each.

That much money may not mean much to economists and statisticians accustomed to deal in hundreds of millions, but to John Farmer and Mary Farmer it means an added living comfort that has been too long denied them.

Let our Government set the wheels of seaway development in motion this year, and let Congress see to it that work on the seaway begins in 1928.

WHEN IS A SUNFISH A LEGAL CATCH?

ONE of the hardest luck stories in the fishing line is that of Mr. and Mrs. A. Evinrude of St. Cloud, who are spending a week at a cottage on North Round lake, and who were out fishing the other evening. They rowed into a school of sunfish, which snapped viciously at the bait in their boat and threatened to jump the gunwale of the boat. Mr. Evinrude had forgotten his rule that he uses in telephone construction work and as he and his wife are very conscientious and had also forgotten their book of laws on fishing, the question arose, what length of sunfish is legal to catch. The question was submitted to the Dispatch and in turn to Carl Wright, who says that a sunfish must be at least five inches in length, measured from the tip of his Roman nose to the fork of the tail.

Mr. and Mrs. Evinrude have been given a copy of the fish laws and a fine ruler by Mr. Wright and reinforced by a can of worms given them by the Iowa colony at the lake, they have resumed their fishing.

GETTING UP EARLY

GETTING up early these mornings has a peculiar delight attached to it.

One sees strange birds and hears them sing. One sees the faint tinge of red and purple and gold streaking the horizon, where the sun shortly puts in its appearance. It's so quiet and peaceful in the woods or near the lakes.

The average man, unless he has a taste of outdoors, wakes at some early hour, looks at his watch, rolls over and goes to sleep again.

But if you want real rest, go to bed near 9 o'clock, sleep your eight hour shift and then get up early. The finest part of the day is at the start of the 24 hours. Don't miss it.

WE will all agree on one thing. If Lieutenant C. C. Champion did miss getting a world's record in altitude, he should be awarded the prize for making the longest and fastest descent. The officer's airplane blew out several braces of cylinders, caught on fire, punched holes in the airplane, the engine went dead and Champion fell seven miles and made a perfect landing in a cornfield.

WHEN Mrs. Anna P. Stillman fired crockery at the photographers, broke windows and occasionally found a photographic mark, she set a bad example for little Lena, bride of Bud Stillman. If women persist in generally growing more assertive and vigorous, it will be necessary for the men to call an arms limitation conference.

BARBERING falls flat for a period in Custer, S. D., where the inhabitants, anxious to gain color and atmosphere, if whiskers and long hair can be called that, let their hair grow for weeks and weeks so that they will look like old timers in their "Gold Discovery Days" pageant.

ALL Brainerd saluted Charley Babcock when the announcement was made that Trunk Highway No. 19 is to be re-tarried. It's needed, for the washboards were getting to be scandalously impertinent.

THERE are honest people galore in this world. For instance, a man we know left an expensive fountain pen two hours on the desk of a busy garage and found it undisturbed at the same location.

It takes a dyed-in-the-wool politician and especially some confirmed office holder to bring to perfection the attitude of seeming to be busy when he is just loafing on the job.

Inability of the Pirates and the Cubs to defeat their opposition narrowed the margin of the three National League leaders to two and one-half games, before today's contests, with the Giants trailing four games behind the third place Cardinals.

Brooklyn downed the Pirates, 7 to 6. Bill Dink held Pittsburgh to two runs but he was forced to retire in the first of the eighth when he was affected by heat. Petty pitched to four of the Buccaneers in the eighth without retiring any of them and he was relieved by Clark. The leaders were held to two runs in the eighth and one in the ninth, however, which gave the Robins the game comfortably.

Rogers Hornsby's seventeenth home run helped the Giants to beat the Cubs, 6 to 5. Hornsby also hit a triple and a single in five times at bat. The Giants' single run in the fifth was decisive as both teams scored three in the sixth and two in the seventh.

A six-run rally in the eighth enabled the Cardinals to dispose of Philadelphia, 10 to 8. The Phillies showing was aided by Cy Williams' 21st and 22nd home runs.

The Senators routed two White Sox pitchers and won behind Walter Johnson's pitching, 12 to 2. Johnson allowed only six hits and got two singles himself.

The Yanks, as usual, beat the Browns. The score was 9 to 4. The Babe Ruth-Gehrig daily home run came in the eighth with one on base and was hit by the senior partner of the firm. It was Ruth's 34th and put him one ahead of his teammate. The Red Sox made it three of four in the present series with Cleveland by taking both games of a double header, 3 to 0 and 4 to 3. The Indians lost all the way in the first game as MacFayden allowed only six hits. In the second game, the Indians hit as well as their opponents but the scoring punch was lacking.

The Cincinnati Reds managed to retain their lead in the second division by beating Boston, 11 to 6. The Braves hit Rixey for four runs in the fourth, tying the score, but couldn't maintain the pace. Detroit beat the Athletics, 5 to 2, obtaining an early three-run lead sharp.

BUT DIED POOR

New York, July 29.—(UP)—Freddie Welsh, who amassed close to $300,000 in the ring career which brought him to the lightweight championship for a three-year period, died in straightened circumstances, his widow said today.

Mrs. Welsh, the former Braham Weinstein, is a housekeeper at a hotel near that in which the former boxer succumbed to heart disease yesterday. She had been separated from her husband and their two children are at a farm in Verbank, N. Y.

Welsh has been looking for employment ever since his health camp at Summit, N. J., purchased from his fistie profits, became heavily mortgaged and fell into the hands of New Jersey business men, his wife said. Only last week William Muldoon of the state boxing commission told Welsh he knew of no jobs for the 41-year-old retired fighter.

New York, July 29.—(UP)—With passports arranged, Bud and Lena Stillman today settled down for three days of comparative quiet pending their departure for Europe on the Olympic at midnight Sunday.

BUT DIED POOR

New York, July 29.—(UP)—Freddie Welsh, who amassed close to $300,000 in the ring career which brought him to the light-weight championship for a three-year period, died in straitened circumstances, his widow said today.

Mrs. Welsh, the former Brahman Weinstein, is a housekeeper at a hotel near that in which the former boxer succumbed to heart disease yesterday. She had been separated from her husband and their two children are at a farm in Verbank, N. Y.

Welsh has been looking for employment ever since his health camp at Summit, N. J., purchased from his fistie profits, became heavily mortgaged and fell into the hands of New Jersey business men, his wife said. Only last week William Muldoon of the state boxing commission told Welsh he knew of no jobs for the 41-year-old retired fighter.

New York, July 29.—(UP)—With passports arranged, Bud and Lena Stillman today settled down for three days of comparative quiet pending their departure for Europe on the Olympic at midnight Sunday.

CHICAGOANS GENERALLY CONFIDENT OF GAINING BIG FIGHT

BERLENBACH GIVES LAWSON K. O. WALLOP

SOME SET DAY
SEPT. 15 AT SOLDIERS FIELD

ASSURANCE BASED ON STATEMENTS OF PROMOTER TEX RICKARD

SAYS "CHICAGO WANTS THE FIGHT, AND I WANT TO PUT IT THERE"

By CLARK B. KELSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, July 29.—Chicagoans interested in annexing the Tunney-Dempsey heavyweight championship fight were "ready to print the tickets" today, naming September 15 as the date of the bout and Soldiers Field as the place.

Their assurance was based on statements of Tex Rickard, the world's most renowned promoter, that Chicago "wants the fight, I want to put it here."

To give confidence to those who regarded the situation dubiously, Rickard took pains both in interviews with newspapermen and in a radio talk to assert he was not "kidding" about holding what is expected to be the greatest money match of all time in Chicago.

Definite and official announcement of the place and date of the championship match was lacking today, however, and probably will be until the South Park Board which controls the giant stadium formally gives its consent to leasing the amphitheatre to Rickard. The board was to meet next Tuesday.

The promoter, who arrived here from New York yesterday, conferred at length with George Getz, head of Mayor Thompson's fight promotion committee, and Edward Kelly, president of the park board. Following the conference, Rickard said:

"We have no announcement to make—but I think Chicago wants the fight and I know positively I want to put it here. What do you make of that?"

Later in a radio talk, Rickard amplified his attitude:

"I'm not kidding about bringing the championship fight to Chicago this time. There has been a lot of pressure brought to bear from New York and Philadelphia. Even some of the Madison Square Garden directors have urged me to go slowly.

"But I've promised to make the Chicago business men a proposition for holding the fight and I'll do it.

Rickard estimated the gate to be obtained from the Soldiers stadium at $2,000,000. Of this amount, he said, Tunney will get $700,000 and Dempsey $400,000.

Money matters will be discussed at a luncheon today at which Rickard will be entertained by the 300 members of the Thompson fight committee. Newspaper publishers and bankers have also been invited.

Two possible obstacles to holding the match as planned remained therefore, provided the financial arrangements demanded by the promoter are met. The attitude of the state boxing commission and the park board must be favorable before the bout can be staged.

Under the Illinois law, only citizens of this state can promote fights. It has been planned to let Getz apply for the formal promotion license "assisted by Rickard." This will satisfy legal requirements, provided the boxing commission approves the plan.

BASEBALL'S BIG FIVE

Babe Ruth again took undisputed lead in the home run race by hitting his thirty-fourth of the season. Ruth also had two singles in his five at-bats.

Tris Speaker made three hits in five times up—each of them going for one base.

Hernsby hit his seventeenth home run, a triple and a single for another trio of hits in five chances.

Gehrig and Cobb went out in three and two attempts, respectively.

N. E. TEAM TO PLAY THE HOUSE OF DAVID

LOCALS TO PUT UP GAMEST FIGHT OF CAREER

GAME CALLED 5 P. M. MONDAY, AUGUST
8TH

The Northeast Brainerd baseball team holders of last year's city league championship and leaders in this year's contest have contracted to play the famous long whiskered, vegetarian House of David ball club, Monday, August 8, at 5 p. m. on the municipal diamond.

The House of David ball club has been playing this season since March 1, starting against the Texas league teams in Texas, playing on to the coast against the Coast League teams and many fast teams of California, Oregon and Washington. They have a very enviable record of 85 per cent wins and in the last 30 games have run up a total score of 247. They have six of the best pitchers out of organized baseball and four other members who could join the big show if they would visit a barber, but cannot on account of their religion.

Among the players are Sharrock, left fielder, the Babe Ruth of the team who is being sought after to sign a contract with the Detroit Tigers. This year he has hit 47 home runs in 140 games played. The St. Louis Cardinals have a standing offer open for Walter (Dutch) Faust, who is considered the world's fastest short stop.

The Northeast team is one of the best in Minnesota outside of the Twin Cities and will endeavor to put up the gamest fight in its career. Recently Bertha had the distinction of an easily won victory from the House of David aggregation so the locals think that there is every chance for a victory. Van Walk is expected back from his trip to the coast and perhaps will appear on the mound with Jarbo for pitching honors.

New York, July 29.—(UP)—Paul Berlenbach showed something of the wallow which earned him the title of "Assassin" in his knockout of Bob Lawson, negro boxer, last night but the ringside critics agreed that his best fights are behind him.

Several hard lefts to the middle sent Lawson crumpling to the floor in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

But while the referee was tolling the seconds over the negro, Berlenbach was unsteady on his own knees and his eyes held a glassy stare. He had received a severe pounding in early rounds and won only by one of the greatest exhibitions of courage ever seen in a ring here.

The former light heavyweight champion has been attempting a comeback and is pointing for a match with Mike McTigue title holder.

TEN MINUTES TO MAKE— TEN MINUTES TO BAKE

Recipes

In the hustle and bustle of today most housewives are taxed to the utmost by the vexatious little things which are so necessary for a happy home. Therefore, good, reliable recipes are always welcome.

An important part of every home is the kitchen. In fact, there is no room in the entire house that appeals more to the home lover. Whole-some biscuits, cakes, waffles, muffins, griddle cakes attractively served help considerably in aiding the housewife keep the family happy and healthy.

The most necessary ingredients for good bakings is baking powder, although sometimes the housewife is not impressed with the importance of this item.

Calumet Baking Powder is a leavening agent which makes light, tender, easily digested foods.

Chocolate Cake is one of the most popular cakes made. An average sized piece is more nourishing than the average sandwich. You are adding to your child's happiness and health when you include a generous piece of cake in his daily luncheon.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt well together. Beat eggs until light and combine with milk. Add to flour making a soft batter and then add melted butter cooled. Bake. Half of this recipe will be sufficient for a family of three or four.

Waffles

2 1/4 cups sifted flour
3 level teaspoons Baking Powder
1/2 level teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups milk

TEN MINUTES TO MAKE— TEN MINUTES TO BAKE

Recipes

In the hustle and bustle of today most housewives are taxed to the utmost by the vexatious little things which are so necessary for a happy home. Therefore, good, reliable recipes are always welcome.

An important part of every home is the kitchen. In fact, there is no room in the entire house that appeals more to the home lover. Whole-some biscuits, cakes, waffles, muffins, griddle cakes attractively served help considerably in aiding the housewife keep the family happy and healthy.

The most necessary ingredients for good bakings is baking powder, although sometimes the housewife is not impressed with the importance of this item.

Calumet Baking Powder is a leavening agent which makes light, tender, easily digested foods.

Chocolate Cake is one of the most popular cakes made. An average-sized piece is more nourishing than the average sandwich. You are adding to your child's happiness and health when you include a generous piece of cake in his daily luncheon.

Pancakes

4 cups flour
4 level teaspoon Baking Powder,
2 3/4 cups milk,
2 eggs
1/2 level teaspoon salt
1/4 cup melted butter or drippings
Sift flour, baking powder and salt well together. Beat eggs until light and combine with milk. Add to flour making a soft batter and then add melted butter cooled. Bake. Half of this recipe will be sufficient for a family of three or four.

Waffles

2 1/2 cups sifted flour
3 level teaspoon Baking Powder
1/2 level teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups milk
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 eggs, beaten separately
Sift all of the dry ingredients together twice. Mix liquid ingredients and combine the two mixtures. Fry on a hot, well greased waffle iron, serve with syrup.

for Big Time

As Father Time each day chalks off another 24 hours and the approaching visit of the Gentry Bros. Shows comes nearer and nearer the kiddies of this entire section are beginning to literally count the hours. The kiddies, however, are not only ones showing keen interest in the circus visit as the grown-ups as well have been talking of taking their annual trip through circus joyland on Tuesday, Aug. 2 when Gentry Bros. circus exhibits in Brainerd.

Nothing is so thrilling to the youngsters and many of the older ones, too, as the spectacle of watching the special circus train pull into the railroad yards and unload its animals and heavy wagons. Long before daylight the kiddie will hop energetically out of bed and without breakfast will run to the railroad yards to see the unloading of the train. From that time until he tucks his weary head under the covers late at night it is a wonderful paradise and a veritable joyland. The visit of the Gentry Bros. Show is better than Santa Claus and the Fourth of July combined, the kiddies agree and they have been planning for the event for weeks.

HEDDA HOYT TELLS-- ABOUT BATHING SUITS

By HEDDA HOYT

New York, July 29.—(UP)—Despite the fact that all shops are sponsoring discreet bathing suits made of silks or cretonnes in dress effects, one glance at fashionable beaches proves that women prefer models which expose or appear to expose the figure.

The Annette Kellerman one-piece suit is entirely too modest for the fashionable woman of today who prefers lighter-weight woollens, almost transparent, with nude-toned shirts and short black trousers. When emerging from the water, the nude-toned shirt causes one to appear entirely bare from the waistline upwards. The trousers, though conservatively pleated, are so short as to almost defy detection. By far the most noticeable part of the costume is the wide belt of white or color which extends through narrow trouser straps. Perhaps the style among sailors of going shirtless has brought about the vogue for bathing suits which to all intents and purposes are shirtless.

Of course, there are a few discreet women at smart beaches who prefer more modest one-piece suits in gay colors. But even these models are more daring in cut than they were last season since armholes and necklines are cut deeper. Entire backless models are occasionally worn by the elite. It must be that the backless vogue for evening wear demands an even sunburn upon the back.

The beach censor may be able to keep shoes and stockings upon the feminine bathers at Coney Island but at the small but restricted beaches of Long Island, a toe is considered a toe among friends. A girl thinks nothing of exposing her toes these days. Stockings and bathing shoes are decidedly minus quantities.

The gay bathing kimono is the one outstanding item depicting modesty this season. Coolie coats in the boldest of patterns and colors are

Tourists Thrilled by Buck Jones' Stunts

Guests at El Tovar Hotel, on the rim of the Grand Canyon in Arizona, had ten entertaining days when Buck Jones and his company of four were making scenes for "Good as Gold," coming to the Lyman Saturday.

The hotel was full of tourists and each was insistent upon seeing Jones perform his daring acts on the peculiar sides of the canyon. A mishap would have meant a fall of almost a mile.

KI'S GROWING IMPATIENT

As Time for Gentry Bros. Circus is Drawing Near Kids Are Planning for Big Time

As Father Time each day chalks off another 24 hours and the approaching visit of the Gentry Bros. Shows comes nearer and nearer the kiddies of this entire section are beginning to literally count the hours. The kiddies, however, are not only showing keen interest in the circus visit as the grown-ups as well have been talking of taking their annual trip through circus joyland on Tuesday, Aug. 2 when Gentry Bros. circus exhibits in Brainerd.

Nothing is so thrilling to the youngsters and many of the older ones, too, as the spectacle of watching the special circus train pull into the railroad yards and unload its animals and heavy wagons. Long before daylight the kiddie will hop energetically out of bed and without breakfast will run to the railroad yards to see the unloading of the train. From that time until he tucks his weary head under the covers late that night it is a wonderful paradise and a veritable joyland. The visit of the Gentry Bros. Show is better than Santa Claus and the Fourth of July combined, the kiddies agree, and they have been planning for the events for weeks.

HEDDA HOYT TELLS ABOUT BATHING SUITS

By HEDDA HOYT
New York, July 29.—(UP)—Despite the fact that all shops are sponsoring discreet bathing suits made of silks or cretonnes in dress effects, one glance at fashionable beaches proves that women prefer models which expose or appear to expose the figure.

The Annette Kellerman one-piece suit is entirely too modest for the fashionable woman of today who prefers lighter-weight woollens, at most transparent, with nude-toned shirts and short black trousers. When emerging from the water, the nude-toned shirt causes one to appear entirely bare from the waistline upwards. The trousers, though conservatively pleated, are so short as to almost defy detection. By far the most noticeable part of the costume is the wide belt of white or color which extends through narrow trouser straps. Perhaps the style among sailors of going shirtless has brought about the vogue for bathing suits which to all intents and purposes are shirtless.

Of course, there are a few discreet women at smart beaches who prefer more modest one-piece suits in gay colors. But even these models are more daring in cut than they were last season since armholes and necklines are cut deeper. Entire backless models are occasionally worn by the elite. It must be that the backless vogue for evening wear demands an even sunburn upon the back.

The beach censor may be able to keep shoes and stockings upon the feminine bathers at Coney Island but at the small but restricted beaches of Long Island, a toe is considered a toe among friends. A girl thinks nothing of exposing her toes these days. Stockings and bathing shoes are decidedly minus quantities.

The gay bathing kimona is the one outstanding item depicting modesty this season. Coolie coats in the boldest of patterns and colors are worn by almost everyone. Sitting about in groups upon the sands, women remind one of gayly colored butterflies. Most of them wear large squares of colored taffeta tied about their heads. These, of course, are replaced by snug rubber swimming caps when one goes in the water.

Wooden sandals with gold or silver leather foot straps, fashioned after the Japanese sandle, are worn over the bare foot upon the sands. And, while fashionable beaches are colorful, they are just a bit shocking to stay-at-home who ventures forth only over the Sundays.

What Every Girl Should Know

by GISA PRUCHONE

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary "Elaine" Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is an orphan. Wally Mason, a young reporter, loves Mary. But she disbelieves in love. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Bobby. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married. David is sentenced to prison for an auto fatality. The Charity Department takes Bobby. Wally proposes. Mary goes to New York, and gets a cloakroom job in a notorious night club. Babs, a young dancer, loves Bennie, the manager and star. Bennie makes eyes at Mary.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

It was during the jazz version of the Pocahontas dance that pandemonium swung down upon the sultry little WHITE APE, seeming to leap from the shadows couched heavily in the ceiling, springing forth from the obscurity of vague corners where the throb of the lights did not reach. There were screams and curses and the mad scurries of escape toward the thickly draped windows, futile efforts from the scenes of which the hot-eyed youths were carried back by strong grasps on their coat collars, looking like so many helpless kittens, paws beating feebly in the air. Mary saw Bennie sliding past the little cage, hoping to escape through the kitchen, but thwarted by a blue uniform that threw him back into the room. The girl who had been kissed a few moments before now fainted, and her escort let her lie while he tried thrusting grapes into the thick hand that clutched at his collar. The greenbacks were thrust aside, however, and fluttered to the floor where they were stepped upon and trampled beneath the scurry of feet.

The trip of Mary's heart. It seemed to emulate the music that had risen and fallen with such provocativeness but a minute before. Now the gleaming instruments were silent, being held between the knees and on the laps of the negro players, most of them quite calm, watching the scene before them with a wide splash of white teeth. Her heart tripped and fell and raced again, seeming to leap up to pulse in her cheeks, then sinking down until she couldn't breathe. What was it? What was happening? And why was she here? In particular, why was she here? In a panic, she slipped beneath the overlapping board of the cage, and was brought up firmly against it by a huge hand that caught at her. "No you don't."

"I—I—" she wrenched her shoulder from his grasp, that of another uniform, and flew. Directly in her path stood Bennie, hands manacled by a thin band of silver. "Take her," he snarled to the pursuing officer. He bowed. "Dear funny that this raid should be pulled off on your first day here. Darn funny." The lids of his eyes had grown even heavier with the load of hatred, and Mary wondered that the soft red lips had ever mouthed "kitten" at her.

She flung up her head. "You don't think I'm the cause of this, do you? Why—I—why?" how to explain to him that not only the cause of the commotion, but the reason itself was clouded with meaning for her? A raid? She had heard of raids, but why? Why the WHITE APE? What was it, and why was she here? And now what would happen?

Order had been managed somehow. With the butts of revolvers and strong fists, and numerous trippings of running feet, and now the guests were being searched. Soft quick taps from the shoulders down. Whisky flasks confiscated. Bottles crashed open to reveal the amber of the forbidden fluid.

"Got enough on you to send you up for life!" That to Bennie from the officer to whom he was manacled.

"I'm not the owner of this place," Bennie. "You haven't got a thing on me, brother!"

"Come on now—all of you." There was one who seemed to direct things. "Close this place up. We'll get you yet, and don't forget it," that to Bennie. "Come on—get on—get on there!"

Bennie and Babs, Little Babs in the absurdity of the Indian trappings, and the remainder of the artists, frightened, wilted, with the red of their lips and cheeks standing out oddly against the fear in their eyes. "You too," to Mary, and she was being thrust into the group, thrust by none too gentle a hand laid on between her shoulder blades. The trapped look in her eyes, the bewilderment, the fear of these proceedings.

—The pleas from which the roundness of youth seemed to have departed. Couldn't she explain? What—why—she was Mary Sullivan of Garden City. Little Mary Sullivan whom Mrs. Tomlinson so loved, and Wally. Mary who was here for Robert's sake, so that more of the beautiful fifty-cent pieces might tinkle in those firm tanned hands. This couldn't be happening to her. It probably wasn't she. Is it possible to leap into another's body and personality, still with the trappings that were one's own, such as hair, and eyes, and the familiar feel of one's

The black horse-like carriage that was backed up against the pavement, and the crowd, peering curiously. Surrounded by police, jostled and pushed, they stumbled up the stairs and into the patrol wagon. Oh—oh—the shame of it! The mocking jeering shame of it! The taunts of the crowd, the whistles and whisks and ribald comments! Huddled up beside Babs and one of the weeping girls, she hid her face in her hands, and endeavored to blot out what was happening.

It is difficult to blot out the solidity of the present, however. When once it has taken on the vagueness of the past, shrouded in dimness and fog, the very haze of it can be blown apart and into the mind's most obscure recesses where time will gradually make of it nothing. But the solidity of the present, the painful actuality of the moment that stops with you before going on—if over it does go on—that moment remains with you during your life.

CHAPTER IX.

The immediate events following the night of her introduction into a police court were a part of her life which Mary longed to thrust away into an obscurity which would grow dimmer with the past. It was difficult finding a place in which to lay away the occurrences of those weeks, however. It was like finding a resting place for cactus near a tender skin. Did she think the events forgotten and relegated to the dunghill in which they belonged, away from the beauty that was Mary, the wave of a backward thought wafted above the cactus would bring pain. The brittle of the cactus that pierced her thoughts and mind, and tore it to shreds. Mary never again felt the completeness of her individuality as being something perfect in its unity. There was ever present the knowledge that part of herself remained in the police court, cowering in abjectness, covered with shame.

Recollection of the experience carried terror with it. The huddled group before the judge, a stricken little group, with Bennie and Babs—Little Babs in Pocahontas disarray with the red feather awry—Bennie and Babs sullen, defiant, the others cowed by the stern habitations of the law—Mary preferred not to think of it, but as a murderer is drawn back to the scene of his crime, so did she revert to the police court on that one night that refused to leave her thoughts free.

They were all given cells for the night, to await justice in the morning. They didn't sleep—how, thought Mary, could one sleep with the knowledge of what was ahead? Babs prophesied heavy fines, but no more, and refused to be worried. The others wept. Strange white-faced children, far removed from the cockiness and surety that was theirs earlier in the night. Defenseless without the aid of their lip rouge and powder, somehow. Younger, more tender, more open to pain.

They were herded before the judge the next morning. Babs covered in a dress of the matron's, a heavy grey garment that swept the floor at her feet, and which she wore with a jauntiness that brought weak giggles from her companions. The judge sternly reproved the levity. The case was opened. Bennie, as part owner of the WHITE APE, was fined heavily, a ruling which brought forth a wink from Babs. The girls were reprieved and forbidden to return to their jobs or any others like them.

What Every Girl Should Know

by GISA PRUCHONE

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary "Elaine" Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is an orphan. Wally Mason, a young reporter, loves Mary. But she disbelieves in love. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Bobby. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married. David is sentenced to prison for an auto fatality. The Charity Department takes Bobby. Wally proposes; Mary goes to New York, and gets a cloakroom job in a notorious night club. Babs, a young dancer, loves Bennie, the manager and star. Bennie makes eyes at Mary.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

It was during the jazz version of the Pocahontas dance that pandemonium swung down upon the sultry little WHITE APE, seeming to leap from the shadows couched heavily in the ceiling, springing forth from the obscurity of vague corners where the throb of the lights did not reach. There were screams and curses and the mad scrambles of escape toward the thickly draped windows, futile efforts from the scenes of which the hot-eyed youths were carried back by strong grasps on their coat collars, looking like so many helpless kittens, paws beating feebly in the air. Mary saw Bennie sliding past the little cage, hoping to escape through the kitchen, but thwarted by a blue uniform that threw him back into the room. The girl who had been kissed a few moments before now fainted, and her escort let her lie while he tried thrusting greenbills into the thick hand that clutched at his collar. The greenbacks were thrust aside, however, and fluttered to the floor where they were stepped upon and trampled beneath the scurry of feet.

The trip of Mary's heart. It seemed to emulate the music that had risen and fallen with such provocation but a minute before. Now the gleaming instruments were silent, being held between the knees and on the laps of the negro players, most of them quite calm, watching the scene before them with a wide splash of white teeth. Her heart tripped and fell and raced again, seeming to leap up to pulse in her cheeks, then sinking down until she couldn't breathe. What was it? What was happening, and why was she here? In particular, why was she here? In a panic, she slipped beneath the overlapping board of the cage, and was brought up firmly against it by a huge hand that caught at her. "No you don't."

"I—I" she wrenched her shoulder from his grasp, that of another uniform, and flew. Directly in her path stood Bennie, hands manacled by a thin band of silver. "Take her," he snarled to the pursuing officer. He brooded. "Damn funny that this raid should be pulled off on your first day here. Damn funny." The lids of his eyes had grown even heavier with the load of hatred, and Mary wondered that the soft red lips had ever mouthed "kitten" at her.

She flung up her head. "You don't think I'm the cause of this, do you? Why—I—why?" how to explain to him that not only the cause of the commotion, but the irascible itself was clouded with meaning for her? A raid? She had heard of raids, but why? Why the WHITE APE? What was it, and why was she here? And now what would happen?

Order had been managed somehow. With the butts of revolvers and strong fists, and numerous tripping of running feet, and now the guests were being searched. Soft quick taps from the shoulders down. Whiskey flasks confiscated. Bottles crashed open to reveal the amber of the forbidden fluid.

"Got enough on you to send you up for life!" That to Bennie from the officer to whom he was manacled.

"I'm not the owner of this place," Bennie. "You haven't got a thing on me, brother!"

"Come on now—all of you." There was one who seemed to direct things. "Close this place up. We'll get you yet, and don't forget it," that to Bennie. "Come on—get on—get on there!"

Bennie and Babs, little Babs in the absurdity of the Indian trappings, and the remainder of the artists, frightened, wilted, with the red of their lips and cheeks standing out oddly against the fear in their eyes. "You too," to Mary, and she was being thrust into the group, thrust by none too gentle a hand laid on between her shoulder blades. The trapper look in her eyes, the bewilderment, the fear of these proceedings. "I—I" she lifted a piteous face from which the roundness of youth seemed to have departed. Couldn't she explain? What—why—she was Mary Sullivan of Garden City. Little Mary Sullivan whom Mrs. Tomlinson so loved, and Wally. Mary who was here for Robert's sake, so that more of the beautiful fifty-cent pieces might tinkle in those firm tanned hands. This couldn't be happening to her. It probably wasn't she. Is it possible to leap into another's body and personality, still with the trappings that were one's own, such as hair, and eyes, and the familiar feel of one's

The black hearse-like carriage that was backed up against the pavement, and the crowd, peering curiously. Surrounded by police, jostled and pushed, they stumbled up the stairs and into the patrol wagon. Oh—oh—the shame of it! The taunts of the crowd, the whistles and winks and ribald comments! Huddled up beside Babs and one of the weeping girls, she hid her face in her hands, and endeavored to blot out what was happening.

It is difficult to blot out the solidity of the present, however. When once it has taken on the vagueness of the past, shrouded in dimness and fog, the very haze of it can be blown apart and into the mind's most obscure recesses where time will gradually make of it nothing. But the solidity of the present, the painful actuality of the moment that stops with you before going on—if ever it does go on—that moment remains with you during your life.

CHAPTER IX.

The immediate events following the night of her introduction into a police court were a part of her life which Mary longed to thrust away into an obscurity which would grow dimmer with the past. It was difficult finding a place in which to lay away the occurrences of those weeks, however. It was like finding a resting place for cactus near a tender skin. Did she think the events forgotten and relegated to the dunghill in which they belonged, away from the beauty that was Mary, the wave of a backward thought walled above the cactus would bring pain. The bristle of the cactus that pierced her thoughts and mind, and tore it to shreds. Mary never again felt the completeness of her individuality as being something perfect in its unity. There was ever present the knowledge that part of herself remained in the police court, cowering in abjectness, covered with shame.

Recollection of the experience carried terror with it. The huddled group before the judge, a stricken little group, with Bennie and Babs—little Babs in Pocahontas disarray with the red feather awry—Bennie and Babs sullen, defiant, the others covered by the stern fulfillments of the law. Mary preferred not to think of it, but as a murderer is drawn back to the scene of his crime, so did she revert to the police court on that one night that refused to leave her thoughts free.

They were all given cells for the night, to await justice in the morning. They didn't sleep—how, thought Mary, could one sleep with the knowledge of what was ahead? Babs prophesied heavy fines, but no more, and refused to be worried. The others wept. Strange white-faced children, far removed from the coyness and surety that was theirs earlier in the night. Defenseless without the aid of their tip rouse and powder, somehow. Younger, more tender, more open to pain.

They were herded before the judge the next morning. Babs covered in a dress of the matron's, a heavy grey garment that swept the floor at her feet, and which she wore with a jauntiness that brought weak giggles from her companions. The judge sternly reproved the levity. The case was opened. Bennie, as part owner of the WHITE APE, was fined heavily, a ruling which brought forth a wink from Babs. The girls were reprimanded and forbidden to return to their jobs or any others like them.
